Antonio D'Andrea's initial interest was in stage design, the study of which he concluded at Milan's Accademia di Brera, followed by a period working with the theatrical directors Luca Ronconi and Mauro Bolognini. Then, graduating in Architecture from Milan Polytechnic University in 1979, he started work with architects Renzo Mongiardino and Giorgio Pes. He has spent a number of years working both in Italy and abroad. His works include many private homes for industrialists and the international jet set.
